Comments and analysis:

One of Mr. Ferron's strength is his ability to empower administrators that report to him to collaborate, create, and lead at a very high level. He used district COVID data daily to inform his decisions around all maintaining a safe learning environment as well as one where student learning was still a top priority. He and his team used iready and DIEBELS assessment data to identify learning loss due to the hybrid learning model. Based on the results of this data they identified students that needed extra support and implemented a Saturday school program. He continues to use SAT, AP, and MCAS data to inform district instruction and curriculum.

Comments and analysis:

From the beginning of the pandemic Mr. Ferron has focused on adapting the management and operations of the schools to provide a safe and healthy environment for our students and staff. This year he led his administrators through all the logistics of opening schools in a pandemic. We were offered a tour of each building before the opening of school this fall, and the preparedness of each building exceeded my expectations. He worked tirelessly to update the HVAC systems at Cedar and HMS to meet the new recommendations provided by DESE. Under his direction the High School schedule was adapted to limit the movement around the school and then changed once they found that it was not meeting the needs of the students. .

Comments and analysis:

One of Mr. Ferron's strengths as a leader is his commitment to transparent and frequent communication to the families and community. This year in particular was one in which communication was paramount to a successful pandemic school year. He exceeded my expectations in this area. He had to communicate more frequently than ever before, and under much more challenging circumstances. He made sure that the parents and staff were informed every step of the way. He did this in a direct manner that was both reassuring and compassionate. He welcomed feedback from the community and addressed concerns, of which there were many, collectively as well as individually. He met individually with each staff member that was requesting a leave or different teaching assignment, as well as those that were just looking for some reassurance of the safety of the buildings and the district's plans to keep them safe. He collaborated on almost a daily basis with our town emergency response team as well as our school health team.

Comments and analysis:

Mr. Ferron's written and verbal communication are exemplary. He communicates effectively with transparency and tailors his communication to match the audience in every situation. During this school year the district determined that our mascot was culturally insensitive and needed to be changed. He led the process of this change with professionalism and compassion. He organized a night to hear from members of the Native American community as well as the Hanover community. He communicated the plan in detail ahead of time in order to keep all stakeholders apprised of the process. The process led to a successful transition from our previous mascot to our new mascot. In participating in negotiations with the teacher's union, Mr. Ferron is an active listener and a clear communicator. He leads the negotiations with transparency and professionalism. He is looking for ways to reach consensus.

Comments:

I think it is noteworthy to state that HPS was the first school district in Massachusetts to dissolve the hybrid model and bring all grades back to in person learning. Mr. Ferron went above and beyond, when he reached out to the state and shared our data, in order for us to get relief on the quarantine rule that was negatively affecting so many of our students. The community sentiment over this extremely difficult year was that Hanover Public Schools was fortunate to have Mr. Ferron as our leader, and I agree wholeheartedly.
