Description:

On May 24, 2019, the Hanover Special Education Parent Advisory Council (SEPAC) created a literacy working group for parents to share ideas and provide feedback on the district's programs and services, including the new Read 2700 initiative. Under its charter, this group is designed to look at reading curriculums and programs that are scientifically and researched based to teach reading and writing skills. Consistent with past working groups, this group will endeavor to create a workable scope, assign tasks, gather information, and communicate with subject matter experts in the District on these topics. The working group will report back to the SEPAC Board regularly on its progress, including on its scope of work in the 2019/2020 school year. All are welcome to join!
